Digital Futures: Learning in a Connected World

We live in a world of increased mobility where proliferation of smart, mobile technologies is creating a host of new anytime, anywhere contexts. Pervasive computing and handheld devices are creating opportunities for learning to become ubiquitous – anytime, anywhere. The emerging social media of Web 2.0 are more flexible, sociable and visually attractive. In short, we live and learn in a connected world.

The 6th Plymouth e-Learning Conference will highlight the need for innovative solutions in education and training, and will provide opportunities for delegates to discuss the tensions that exist between institutional provision and personalised learning.

Teachers! Do you have any students between 9-18 years of age who are using new technologies in an innovative way to enhance their learning? If so, we want to hear from you. We will be holding a student voice technology showcase as a part of the Plymouth e-learning conference on Wednesday (Day 1).

We invite small teams of students from Primary and Secondary schools to come and present their work to other children and teachers in the area. This is a fantastic free event that will provide young people with a great learning experience whilst helping teachers in their continuing professional development.

To register your students as participants please visit the following site: <http://bit.ly/fBfAKG> and register your own attendance at the event here: <http://bit.ly/gjP8Jr>

NB: We are also hosting a free Teachmeet on the evening of Day 1.
